

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Turning Heads Launches “Turning Wild” — An Inclusive Outdoor Space for Community, Growth, and Opportunity

Buckland Barn, TQ12 4SA — Turning Heads is proud to announce the launch of Turning Wild, a new inclusive outdoor space designed to create opportunities for people of all abilities to connect with nature, learn practical skills, and build confidence in a welcoming and supportive environment.

Turning Wild will provide a safe and accessible community space where individuals can grow fresh food, improve wellbeing, reduce isolation, and develop independence through meaningful outdoor activities.

What’s Happening at Turning Wild?

Community Growing Space

Participants will have the opportunity to grow fresh local produce, learn gardening and sustainability skills, and connect with others through shared activities and community involvement.

Outdoor Day Service

Turning Wild will also offer outdoor-based support for adults with disabilities and individuals facing barriers to employment, helping people build confidence, gain experience, and access new opportunities for the future.

Why Turning Wild Matters?

Turning Wild has been created to support:

- Confidence and independence
- Improved mental health and wellbeing
- Reduced social isolation
- Skills development and future opportunities
- Stronger local community connections

Sustainable and Local

As part of its long-term vision, Turning Wild will focus on growing fresh, local produce while supporting community food networks and promoting sustainable living.

When is this happening?

Wednesday 8th July from 10am until 2pm

Get Involved

Turning Heads welcomes volunteers, community partners, and local supporters to become part of the project and help something truly meaningful grow.

Be part of something growing.
